This is a black and white photograph of a city street scene, oriented vertically but rotated 90 degrees clockwise from its original capture. The scene depicts a wide street lined with multi-story buildings, possibly in an industrial or commercial district. On the left side of the image (which would be the right side of the original horizontal orientation), there are several tall buildings with numerous windows. A prominent building in the foreground has a series of windows that appear to be part of a storefront or a public building. In the center of the street, there are some vehicles and possibly pedestrians, though they are not clearly distinguishable. On the right side of the image (the left side of the original orientation), a large plume of smoke or steam rises from the street, suggesting the presence of a factory or a large industrial building. The overall atmosphere is one of a busy, early 20th-century urban environment. The image has a grainy texture and some dark spots, characteristic of older film photography.

The Community Picnic

Picnics were popular in days gone by—as they still are. This group includes, among others, Mrs. Oscar Goebel, Fred Huning, Nina Otero, Charles Reinken, Mrs. Reinken, Paul Dalies, Hans Becker, L.C. Becker, Carl Huning, Emma Huning. Do you recognize them?

THE NEWS-BULLETIN

IN 1904—E. A. Ross snapped the above scene of Belen from the Becker elevator. Looking north the building in upper left corner belonged to Oscar Goebel. Below it is the original adobe wing of Becker-Dalies Co. In the center is shown the early Lutheran church which also served as a school house. At lower center is foundation for a building on lot 18, block 32 of Coronado avenue.

A GREETING FOR THE NEW YEAR -- This greeting can be seen by motorists on I-25. The sign, about 18' wide and 11' high, was done by Chip Harding for the Chamber of Commerce. Harding recently started a sign painting business in Belen. Willie Giron, chairman of the Chamber's Highway Committee designed the sign. The sunburst is orange, "welcome" is red, "to" is black and "Belen" is dark blue.

Remember When...

This view of the Our Lady of Belen Church fiestas takes place on an unpaved Main Street. From the look of the women's clothes it's apparently around the turn of the century. Old-timers recall days when dancing was done on the streets. For other views of the history of the county, look inside this section. (Valencia County Historical Society collection.)

A painting shows Baca Oil Co., which eventually evolved into Baca Auto on South Main in Belen. (Baca Auto collection.)

This interior of Our Lady of Belen Catholic Church shows its intricate and beautiful altar. (Belen Chamber of Commerce collection.)

This is one of the earliest photos in the section. It shows Main Street of Belen including the John Becker store and the Fred Scholle hotel. Maggie McDonald of the Valencia County Historical Society said it is the first copy of this postcard she's seen. (Mrs. A.F. Stamps collection.)
